

[Munson, Elizabeth]

DEATHS.

In this city [Utica] on the 20th inst., after a short but distressing sickness, Mrs. ELIZABETH MUNSON, consort of Mr. Edmund Munson, aged 25. Seldom are we called to witness a more distressing sickness, or a family more deeply afflicted by the death of the subject, than in the present case. Till a very few days before her death, Mrs. Munson appeared to be in the enjoyment of perfect health, the affectionate faithful wife, the fond and loving mother (of three small children,) in the blooming morn of majestic womanhood, and in the midst of domestic quiet and usefulness, is thus suddenly cut down, and leaves the widowed heart of her husband, her tender children, and all who had known her virtues and her worth to mourn, not as those who have no hope; but cherishing in fond remembrance her many virtues, they joyfully anticipate a happy and final meeting in another and better world, where sorrow, sickness, pain and death, can never come, and where parting will be no more.
